John Wesley Methodist Church
Mount Vernon vicinity public worship

The John Wesley United Methodist Church, erected in 1887, is a prominent Gothic Revival frame church erected on the north side of Mount Vernon Road. In contrast to many other tee or ell-plan churches, John Wesley Church was designed with an axial plan and a corner bell tower. Instead of pointed arch openings the windows are finished with round arches. Surrounding the church on three sides is a nineteenth and twentieth-century cemetery that is bordered by a modern linked chain hung between brick piers. The church hall stands on the south side of Mount Vernon Road.

John Wesley United Methodist Church description

John Wesley United Methodist Church is located on the north side of MD 362, 5.7 miles west of Princess Anne. Somerset County, Maryland. The large, single story frame church faces south with the principal gable oriented on a north/south axis. The church hall stands on the south side of the road.

Built in 1887, this large single-story gable frame church is supported by a minimal brick foundation, and it is uniformly sheathed with aluminum siding. The steeply pitched asphalt shingle roof has extended eaves. Rising on the southwest corner of the building is a three-story bell tower. Surrounding the church on three sides is the church cemetery.

The double leaf front door is topped by a two-light transom, and the entrance itself is protected by a shed roof that stretches between the tower and a one-bay gabled section that fills the right (east) bay. The upper gable of the sanctuary is pierced by a round, colored glass windows, whereas the third floor is pierced by a large louvered bellfry. The pyramidal roofed spire is marked on each side by a gabled vent. The single-story gable roofed section to the east of the entrance is lighted on its south side by a round arched sash window. Fixed in the southwest corner of the foundation is a marble date plaque engraved, "John Wesley M.E. Church, A.D. 1887."

The east and west sides of the rectangular sanctuary are divided into four bays with each bay defined by a round arched colored glass window.

The north (back) side of the church is extended by a shorter single-story altar supported by raised foundation. The brick foundation wall is pierced by three-light windows. Defining each side of the apse is a paired round arched window. Rising against the north wall is an exterior brick stack.

The interior was not open on the initial visit.

Surrounding the church on three sides is a nineteenth and twentieth-century graveyard that is bordered by a modern chain fence linked between brick piers. The church hall is a single-story frame structure erected on the south side of the road.

SIGNIFICANCE

The John Wesley United Methodist Church, built in 1887, is a prominent structure which was built directly on the main road to Mount Vernon. In contrast to many other tee or ell plan churches, John Wesley of Mount Vernon was erected with an axial plan and a corner bell tower. Instead of pointed Gothic windows the openings were built with round arches. The John Wesley Methodist church is one of the older Methodist congregations in the immediate vicinity of Mount Vernon.
